The five day process all begins with Tigger – Kenny's trusted pony – and a big picture look at what can be achieved with your horse. It's an astonishing demonstration of possibility and pure inspiration. This presentation is followed by two days of unbroke and problem horse demos. It's here Kenny begins to breakdown the training process into understandable and actionable segments of information. And then he goes deeper yet. The clinic closes with three days of personal training that will provide you with all the right tools for positive change. You'll leave with a literal "step out" in the right direction. A give that will lead you to a more responsive horse. A cue for a calmer equine. An exercise that will keep you safe. Answers to your specific needs. And an outcome that will help you and your horse develop a lasting bond of trust built on a foundation of smart training. All in all, some pretty remarkable stuff.
